CHOOSING THE RIGHT DETAILS

— FOR YOUR DESIGN —

Beaded Inset

An old world, classic type of styling typically used with traditional or French country designs. This type of inset uses time tested mortise and tenon joinery with an integrated beaded frame around each opening.

Flush Inset

Flush inset is often used in shaker style designs or with an intent to create more of a lineal or transitional look. It also uses mortise and tenon joinery, but with a non-beaded frame that has a square edge.

Full Overlay

Commonly used with contemporary and modern styled designs. This clean look is accomplished by using doors and drawer heads that almost completely overlay the cabinet face, creating a continuous and sleek feel.
